Working from home?

WITH more and more people opting to work from home, Anglia Factors, based on Martlesham Heath in Suffolk, is helping to make home-working a more comfortable experience.

"Studies show that over the next five years more than 20% of Britain's workforce will opt to use their domestic surroundings as their place of work," commented Daniel Barr, Director. "With the onset of email, e-commerce and audio-visual conferencing it is making more sense to transform a room in your home. Whether you are contemplating working from home running a business or working remotely, it is worth dedicating some space to a proper home office."

Anglia Factors is now carving a niche in designing and building home offices throughout Suffolk. With over 40 years' experience of supplying hand-made bespoke kitchens and interiors Anglia Factors realise the importance of achieving an office environment that is unique and personalised workspace. A visit to Anglia Factors will start with a consultation to establish the clients' needs. The team will then design a package suited to the space available, taking into consideration communication technology needs, allowing for cabling and even special task lighting.

The team of in-house craftsmen will construct your furniture, enabling you to have total control over every single element of your order, from design to installation and once installed with last you a lifetime.
